DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9, 11-23 and 25-66 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Burbank (6312429) further in view of Mahvi (2002/0022864). In figure 11, col. 9 lines 48-50 and col. 11 line 66 – col. 7 line 1, Burbank discloses a probe for deploying electrode arrays. As illustrated below, the probe comprises a shaft, a first array of electrode having a concave face and a second array of electrodes also having a concave face, wherein the concave face of the first and second arrays face each other when the arrays are deployed. Furthermore, Burbank teaches in col. 4 lines 25-28 that the device can be bipolar and discloses in column 4 lines 9-11 that in bipolar surgery that a return that in bipolar surgery that a return electrode may be positioned somewhat near the primary electrode.

Mahvi teaches in figures 1-5, paragraphs (0009) and (0038)-(0040) that it is known in the art to couple one pole of a RF power supply to a first electrode array (e.g. 22a, (0039)) and another pole of the RF power supply to a second electrode array (e.g., 22b, (0039)) and energizing the power supply to apply electrical current between the first and second array spaced at opposite edges of a tumor (0038)-(0039) in order to increase lesion size by focusing existing energy on the tumor volume between two or more electrodes and creating a more regular lesion area than would be possible with monopolar umbrella electrodes. One having ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to place the return electrode as taught by Burbank on the second electrode array of Burbank based on Mahvi teachings in order to increase lesion size and create a more regular lesion area than would be possible with the monopolar device.

Regarding the claim limitations directed to the distance and volume between the electrodes, frequency range and the power range, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made select the dimensions and ranges as claimed, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the prior art.
